A Gull's Eye View

What do you think about the possibility of having restricted visitation in all of the traditional dorms?

Hazel Berman
I don't like it because it doesn't give freshmen the right to choose what type of environment they want to live in. Restricting one dorm might be a better idea.

LaBrew Solomon
I think it's stupid to have these restrictions because I think students are responsible enough to handle their own personal relationships, plus we are not paying over $2,000 to be baby sitted by the school.

Chuck Zukas
I think it's stupid to say the least. The prices they're charging these days for the dorms and then tell you who you can have over past a certain time is ridiculous.

Jeannie Greenert
I don't like the idea. It's a good thing I'm graduating!

Jacqueline Banks
I'm a bit conservative. I think that although students are responsible,
they need guidance in some areas. So, yes, I agree with restricted
visitation.

Visitation...

Everyone seems to be talking about society taking a turn towards the more conservative lifestyle from years past. A recent example of this idea was the raising of the drinking age in Maryland back to 21 years of age.

Changes are occurring on all college campuses across the country. Now the Housing Department of Salisbury State College is planning to change the visitation policies in all of the traditional dormitories on campus. Of course it is not completely finalized, but there is a good chance that members of the opposite sex will not be allowed to visit in the dormitories past 11 p.m. during the week and past 1 a.m. on the weekends.

Why is Housing advocating for a change in the present policy? To give individuals the chance to choose the type of conditions in which they want to live.

We at the Flyer think that the idea of having limited visitation available on a college campus is good. Individuals should be allowed to choose their own lifestyle. As the present system stands, there is unlimited visitation in all of the dormitories on campus. This really doesn't give anyone the ability to choose the type of environment in which they want to live.

What Housing doesn't realize is that limited visitation in all of the traditional dormitories does not give the incoming freshmen a choice. All incoming freshmen are placed in the traditional dorms first. Sure, some of them will be lucky enough to obtain a room in the high rises or the apartment style coed dorms, but what about the rest of them? How can Housing honestly say that they are giving the students a "choice"?

The Flyer has a solution for this problem. Very simply, if Housing is so anxious to have limited visitation, why not have it in only one male and one female dormitory? This way, students would be given the choice of a living environment. Students who want to live in a restricted environment will be able to do so and students who wish to keep unlimited visitation will be satisfied too.

This proposal seems very reasonable to the Flyer staff. In any case, we feel that before any definite change is made, the Housing Department should try to find out the exact needs and feelings of the students by some sort of survey or question/answer session. By changing the policies and rules without student input, there will probably be quite a bit of resentment towards the administration.

Letters To The Editor:

Blue Jeans Day

Dear Editor,

This letter concerns the cover story, "Blue Jeans Day Arrives At SSC Campus..." in the April 28 issue.

I guess before I get into this I should tell you that I have absolutely no compassion for those people who call themselves gay.

The reason I'm writing is because I feel the Gay Alliance and the Flyer covertly worked together with the intention of making Blue Jeans Day a surprise to everyone.

My question to the Gay Alliance is how come the day was not publicized prior to the morning of April 28 when the Flyer appeared on the newsstands? I thought the Gay Alliance wanted to be recognized. It seems all they wanted to do was gain some publicity and at the same time make everyone wearing jeans feel uncomfortable.

I believe the member of the SSCGA that said, "It is not like we are asking for special consideration," is either blind to the truth or lying to himself. The Gay Alliance wants one thing—attention—and nothing more.

I hope that future students at SSC refuse to acknowledge the Gay Alliance as a college organization. If members of the college gay community want to meet on campus, fine, but if they are looking for understanding from the so called "straight" people they had better come out of the "closet" and make themselves seen and not just heard.

My suggestion to the SSCGA is that if you want recognition you should have a T-shirt day and all of your members should wear them reading, "I'm Gay and Proud of It!"

As far as the Flyer is concerned I believe you have stooped as low as I have seen in four years. The story was nothing more than a promotional piece. What happened to those things journalists are supposed to adhere to: integrity, news value, etc.

The Gay Alliance has problems of their own which you need not get yourself involved with. If you think it's just students who are upset over the story, wait until the home subscriptions reach parents. I hope the Flyer isn't looking for more paid subscriptions.

Bob Thomas

First of all, we did not "covertly" work together with the Gay Alliance. We at the Flyer only print the news the way we get it. Especially since you have worked for us in the past, you should know that we do not make a habit of publicizing what we print before the publication date.

If the SSCGA does not wish to promote their activities with advertising, then that is their business. Your complaint really should have been directed to them!

Secondly, it is not that we want to or try to get involved with what you call "problems" of the Gay Alliance. We did not make the story up. This type of activity has been going on at other college campuses too. News is news! We cannot just ignore a story because it is not to your or anyone else's liking. We only hope that you and all the others who feel the same way will be able to understand this in the future.

Dear Editor,

We feel that Blue Jeans Day, April 28, was a farce. Three quarters of the campus wears blue jeans anyway, and no one knew of Blue Jeans Day for the gays. The students were not informed of this event, and therefore did not have a right for personal choice on whether or not they wanted to support the gays.

If the student's Gay Alliance wants to become a recognized campus entity they should promote more "relevant" activities that students can participate in if they choose. Dances and social activities that are publicized on campus may be a good alternative to this meaningless day of recognition. Therefore, students will have the alternative of whether or not to participate in S.S.C.G.A. activities.

Scholarship Justified

Dear Editor,

I am writing in response to the letter from Jerry McGuire in the last issue of the Flyer. First of all, I would like to point out that the SGA receives only part of the student activities fee, the rest goes to intramurals and athletics.

The SGA had, at the beginning of the year, $40,000 in carry-over funds from past years. Part of that money was added to the 81-82 funds so that SGA organizations would have more items than our actual fiscal budget would allow for.

Next year, activity fees will not be required from part time students, which will mean a financial reduction of about $8,000 to the SGA. Because of this, the SGA must conserve the outflow of the carry-over as a cushion in case of unplanned for expenses.

This year, the SSC Dance Company needed an additional $700 to costume their Spring Concert.

VIEWPOINT

When I was a young police reporter, I once wrote a story about what I called "a senseless murder." My night city editor, who enjoyed make believe murders in detective stories more than the real thing, threw the story in my face, growling that there was no such thing as a sensible murder.

Perhaps not, but I continue to believe that some murders are more senseless than others, and the murders of British sailors by their own government last week is about as senseless as they come.

These murders were not premeditated. The British set sail for the Falkland Islands last month as a show of force, to resolve a murky dispute about sovereignty over a few small islands at the end of the world.

It was not a crime of passion. No one wanted to fight. The British fleet took its own sweet time about getting there. At the beginning of the crisis, three out of five Britons said in a national poll that the dispute with Argentina was not worth the loss of one single British life.

None of the usual motives for crimes between nations were present. The islands are of no known military value to what remains of the British empire. The wool the Falklands export to England is not of much economic importance anymore. The descendants of the early British settlers in the Falklands got along fine with the Argentines and in fact begged the British government to let them alone before they were forced to leave their homes when the crisis escalated.

Why then was this crime perpetrated? Why did the Argentines invade the Falkland Islands in the first place? And why did the British set sail to make matters right? Pride: the most senseless of all motives for crime and yet one of the most common motives among men as well as nations. When it is pride among nations, it is correctly spelled, p-a-t-r-i-o-t-i-s-m.

Of course, neither pride nor patriotism is usually expected to result in anything as extreme as death. Very few men protecting their pride in bars or their manhood at home are killers, but yet bars and homes do produce a great many homicides.

And showing the flag on the high seas is not supposed to lead to wars, either. It is a common form of international diplomacy practiced from time to time by almost every nation which has anything to show.

In following this kind of murder case through to trial, I have found that almost always the plea is self defense. Regardless of who started the fight the winner usually justifies the killing by saying he wanted to save his own life. Asked by her own Parliament why the British torpedoed and sank the Argentine Cruiser Belgrano, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said, "Had we left it any later, it would have been too late, and then I might have had to come to Commons with the news that some of our ships had been sunk."

Unfortunately, pride and patriotism are not confined to one side in a dispute. The Argentine naval commanders, determined to exact revenge over the sinking of their pride and joy, then attacked and burned a British destroyer, killing at least 30 British sailors with many more likely to follow on both sides.

So much for deterrents to war—conventional or nuclear.

There is at least one difference between warfare and other types of crime. War is the one crime that only the losers have to answer for. The winning countries hold the war crime trials, and the losers have to pay. Sometimes, if a country loses a war as the United States did in Vietnam, it may hold its own government accountable, but seldom or never if it wins.

It is my earnest hope that both Argentina and England lose this war, so that both tottering governments can be expelled from office and made to pay for their inexcusable mistakes.

Perhaps my night city editor was right in saying that all murders are senseless, but I still contend that some are more senseless than others. And murders motivated by pride and stupidity somehow seem to me even more punishable than those which are done for some purpose.

This group earns a lot of their own money with projects, and in the past had received $200 for performing at the Spring Gala. They weren't asked to perform this year and their dance numbers were such that, even with volunteer seamstresses, the $700 was necessary to put on a Spring show. Because we know that this group will use the money frugally, and because students, faculty and community members alike look forward to and enjoy the Dance Company's annual Spring Concert, the SGA gave them the $700 out of the carry-over fund.

The Genesis Help Line needed money too, to circulate more flyers and brochures throughout the campus and to start offering their services to the local high schools as well. The SGA realizes that high school students don't pay activity fees, but we also realize that sometimes these students have personal problems with nowhere to turn. They may need someone to talk to who understands the complications that arise in school, the home and in relationships. The Help Line is comprised of volunteer students who are trained to provide information and support to those who call with a problem, but they are still students so they understand other students and they may be easier to talk to because of that. It won't cost us that much more to provide brochures to let high school students know someone who will listen is just a phone call away.

That is what's called human compassion. It's called sharing. We took that money out of the carry-over, too.

As far as student activities go, a look at the Flyer or the weekly bulletin should allay any fears that the students don't have enough things to do. Movies, concerts, lectures, trips and dances are in abundance, even when attendees aren't.

If the "silent majority" wants to complain how the SGA money is being spent, I'd suggest that they start getting involved more. This year, on and off campus representative positions have been available throughout the entire year too anyone who wants to be heard or to know what's going on. And if the "silent majority" wants more activities, I'd suggest that they volunteer to help organize and promote events, or at least attend the ones that are available now. Anyone who is active knows that events can not happen without people to plan, promote, execute and attend the event, regardless of the money spent.

The SGA scholarship was established for the purpose of providing the people power for the future. By selecting a high school student who displays a multitude of positive qualities, including leadership, we are hoping to provide inspiration for future involvement in student-run activities. We are hoping that the scholarship winner will inspire others to become involved, and that the scholarship itself will cause enthusiastic people to apply to SSC and attend even if they don't receive the scholarship. We hope that these people will draw the rest of the students out of their dorms and onto committees.

I hope everyone who reads this can see how enthusiastically I support the SGA scholarship. I feel it is an area of this year's SGA that is above reproach. It is necessary to keep a cushion fund for unexpected expenses such as described above however, it is illegal for the SGA to make money off of it. With the scholarship, the SGA will have $10,000 in case of an emergency that is also helping to send a student through school. The interest money of the $10,000 is all that will be spent.

The Administration heartily approves of the scholarship, sure, but the decision to start it was totally up to the SGA general board and we were put under no pressure whatsoever. As far as the newspaper coverage goes, if they want to write about the scholarship I think it's great—positive things should be written about more often.

Janice John

Election Error Made

Dear Editor,

This is a letter of protest over the extremely inept handling by the SGA Executive Board of the controversy concerning the position of Rules Committee Chairman.

The position was taken away from a candidate who, although he was the winner, was found to be ineligible according to the SGA constitution. This constitution does not allow a freshman to be elected to an Executive Board position. Of course this position has since been given back to the candidate.

The two main arguments used in his behalf were:

Mixed Reactions To Jeans Day

By John D. Frazier

On April 28, the Flyer published an article concerning an event which had previously never occurred. The first event of its kind, Blue Jeans/Gay Awareness Day received quite a bit of response, both positive and negative.

The biggest concern was that some people felt the intent of the day was coercive. That particular problem arose over an opinion which stated, "Blue Jeans Day give the Gay Alliance the opportunity to be proud of everyone who supports gay by wearing jeans."

"The concern of the two people who came to me was that that statement was coercive; that in fact the institution was telling students that if they kept jeans on they were supportive," said Dean of Students Carol Williamson. "What needed to be straightened out was that things that are written in the student paper don't necessarily have the condoning of the administration;

it's not the college doing it, it's the students doing it. Sometimes that's hard for people to understand, so I urged them to respond with a letter to the editor," she added.

Dr. Robert McBrien, director of the Counseling Services at SSC, had a very positive reaction. "An experience like this, for me, is something that's very acceptable on a college campus...it forces people to look at their own attitudes regarding gay lifestyles. People who did that actually had their consciences raised, and had a chance to check their attitudes. The concept of bringing awareness, well, it's extremely important to the college community." Dr. McBrien stated that he received very little negative feedback, and he hopes that events of this sort will continue in the future.

So it appears that SSC handled the situation extremely well. Many students have expressed positive attitudes also. The general feeling was that most students did not mind the recognition given to Blue Jeans Day, even though it may have put them in a somewhat precarious situation.

David Ganoe, director of the College Center, complimented students and the College for exemplifying the maturity and acceptance that they did. He even suggested, for future reference, some possible workshops for students which will expose them to the issue of homosexuality, and will perhaps help dispel some of the myths surrounding this subject.

These workshops would help explain some of the social, medical, and psychological aspects of homosexuality, and emphasize that homosexuality is, among other things, no longer considered by the Organization of Professional Psychiatrists to be a form of psychotic behavior. However, these events are still "in process" and will not be finalized for some time.

Food Service Polls Students

As the need aspired, a food service committee made up of students was formulated to work closely with those people in Food Service to help solve problems and incorporate student's suggestions into the dining hall's upcoming plans. Any legitimate complaints or feasible suggestions made by students will be voiced to Food Service.

To gain affirmative ground, the food service committee distributed a survey to find out the problem areas. The survey was made up of 180 males and 220 females. Through their survey, the food service committee discovered that 30% of the people questioned did not eat breakfast at all, as opposed to 25% eating breakfast daily.

Other interesting conclusions were drawn from the survey. Of the 400 people surveyed, approximately 40% of students said that the quality of the seconds line at dinner is satisfactory (although girls rarely go to the seconds line), 26% thought the vegetables served were overcooked (21% thought they were undercooked), and 50% believed the quantity of the main entree at dinner is sufficient.

The vast majority of the students, (87%) believed the newly acquired ice cream machine is a good idea while 38% do not like the other desserts served.

If the food is not to your liking, at least most of the people surveyed (87%) think the student employees are kind and courteous.

Some other areas of complaint brought out by the survey were, 1) the need for variety of salad dressings especially Bleu Cheese, 2) the music is too loud at times, 3) the lunchmeat should be of better quality, 4) the need for baked fish, 5) the food in general is too salty (let people salt their own food), and 6) there is not enough of a variety of vegetables served and they should be served the same way.

These complaints along with the addition of the suggestions rendered will be further voiced to Mrs. Cottman and Monte Bradley in Food Services.

One constant problem that Food Service has to deal with is the bid system. This means that ordering has to be done 3 months in advance. In order for food service to order they must calculate how many people will be there for a specific meal and how much they will eat. This may seem simple, but

Recognition Weekend Off To A Good Start

By Sue McGee

With Honors Convocation kicking it off, Salisbury State College's first annual Student Recognition Weekend began at 3:30 p.m. on April 23.

The weekend was designed to acknowledge SSC student accomplishments ranging from athletic activities to performing arts and student organizations. The events were scheduled over one weekend so that parents, friends and alumni could come to SSC and take in a range of activities in one visit.

Dean of Students Carol Williamson said the turnout was "nowhere near what I expected." There were 70 guests (parents, friends, alumni, etc.) who paid the $2 registration fee. She added, though, that she was certain there were more guests who did not pay the fee but attended one or more of the events.

Several hundred was her estimate of the number of guests all totalled. Williamson said the student response to the weekend was "absolutely positive."

Honors Convocation, one of the highlights of the weekend, recognized outstanding students in academia and campus life.

The Nathan Foundation Scholarship Award, which offered the highest monetary prize—up to $2,000—was awarded to Greg Willey. The Board of Trustees Outstanding Scholar Award was given to Alicia L. Causey. She received $500.

The SGA Outstanding Senior Award, which was first announced at the convocation, was awarded to Hazel Ann Berman and John Honors Convocation with Dr. Ray Thompson, Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance and Senior Thomas Dashiell.

Edward Moseman. Both were given $150 to go towards the wristwatches of their choice.

Various other departmental, memorial and scholarship awards were presented. Dean's List students were also recognized.

In addition to Honors Convocation, various cultural events were available to students and guests. The Sophanes presented "Take it From the Top," an entirely student produced show, from Friday through Sunday.

The Dance Company performed some dances from its spring show at the SGA Seagull Club reception held in Powell Dining Hall on Saturday. Student art exhibits were displayed throughout the weekend also.

Several athletic events - tennis, baseball, lacrosse, volleyball and the Delmarva Relays rounded out the weekend.

Williamson cited the cancellation of the Chamber Choir performance as one of the only mishaps of the weekend. The choir was scheduled to sing at a luncheon on Saturday, but because only four persons made reservations, the luncheon was scratched from the agenda.

Allowed To Hold Office The Search Continues

By Rick Schraf

On April 16 John Moseman, president of the Student Government Association notified Rick Matthews that he had won in the SGA elections and was the new rules committee chairman. About ten minutes later, John Moseman called to inform Rick Matthews that since he was a freshman, he was ineligible to keep his position as rules committee chairman. The position then went to Sharon Miller, another candidate.

About a week later, Matthews discussed the outcome of the elections with Dean of Students Carol Williamson. She told Matthews that the reason freshmen are not allowed to be on the SGA executive council is because in the past much of the freshman population didn't live on campus and therefore did not participate in many student events.

With the new housing system, though, freshmen have a better chance of getting on campus. Because of this Matthews feels freshmen should be able to run for executive positions.

Williamson told Matthews that if he felt strongly enough about the situation he should appeal to the SGA executive council, which he did.

The SGA executive council listened to him and then dismissed Matthews from the room. After deliberating for nearly 45 minutes the council told him they could not reach a decision. Since the board was deadlocked, it consulted Carol Williamson. A short time later, Moseman announced that Matthews had won and could regain the position of rules committee chairman.

Regarding the incident, Matthews said, "I'm glad I got the position but I'm sorry all this juggling had to go on because now Sharon had the position taken away from her just as it was taken away from me."

Mr. And Miss SSC ?

By Maria Smioldo

The SGA Outstanding Senior Award, formerly Mr. and Miss SSC, has been changed from a popularity-type contest to a more prestigious recognition of student accomplishments, said Dean of Students Carol Williamson, a member of the Salisbury State College Honors Committee.

Previously, the procedure for deciding who would receive the award began with students nominating prospective contestants. These nominees submitted resumes, and were then voted on by the students.

This year, a committee of juniors headed by Janice John was selected to decide how to conduct the award elections. John said, due to a "communications barrier" between the Honors Committee, John Moseman, and the Award Committee, the procedure for this year's selection was up in the air.

The Honors Committee said that if the award was made by popular vote, it could not be presented at the Honors Convocation. John felt that since students have always picked the winner of this award, "it should remain that way."

All conflicts were ironed out and a compromise was reached in time for the election. The committee ranked the candidates, and there was a popular vote as well. The award was given out at the Honors Convocation.

The SGA constitution will be modified to determine how next year's meeting will be conducted. John said possible changes include the selection being made solely by the Honors Committee and a committee of juniors, and simply awarding two students—not necessarily one male and one female—for their contributions to SSC.

Nanticoke Wins Derby Days

By Gene Fox & Debbie Judd

The third annual Miller High Life/WSSC/RHA Derby Days was a major success. SSC's women's organizations participated in fun-filled games, some of skill and some of luck. The organizations that participated were Manokin, Nanticoke, Chesapeake/Commuters, Phi Beta Sigma Doves, Zeta Tau Alpha, Little Sisters of Sigma Nu and Omega Psi Phi Essence.

The overall winner was the Nanticoke team headed by Mitzie Kirts and coached by WSSC's John Daniel. Second place was taken by the Phi Beta Sigma Doves, and Zeta Tau Alpha came in at a close third.

The competition began with the Derby Chase. With the exception of personal injuries, the chase enabled the Derby Days events to start off with enthusiasm and participation from all organizations.

An event that made a big splash was the Water Volleyball. The organizations played volleyball with water balloons instead of volleyballs. According to some observers, "This event should have been combined with a wet T-shirt contest." All those involved, participants as well as observers, should consider themselves lucky if they escaped without being bombed by the water balloons.

Student Fined $215 For False Alarm

By Cindy Schneider

On April 26, a trial was held at the Wicomico County District Court here in Salisbury for an off-campus Salisbury State College student charged with making a false alarm in Pocomoke Hall on April 3.

The court found him guilty and fined him $200 plus $15 in court costs.

James Phillips, Director of Public Safety at SSC commented, "I feel that this was a fair sentence. It makes for a good deterrent because $215 is a lot of money for a student or anyone to come up with."

Phillips said that when he meets with the school board he will recommend that this student's dorm visiting privileges be terminated for at least the remainder of the semester.

Derby Days was a success with some of the new games like Keg Roll

To test the vocal abilities of the participants, a Hog Calling contest was held. Techniques for calling the hogs ranged from crawling around on the ground like a pig to trying to seduce Miss Piggy by Kermit the Frog.

The girls were able to get back at their coaches for working and pushing them too hard in the Pin The Pie on the Coach competition. All of the coaches recieved a pie from one girl from his team. The only catch was that it was in the face.

The events came to an end with a party in the College Center Pub. The winners were announced and prizes were awarded.

The first place winners recieved t-shirts and a case of beer. A deck of cards was awarded to the second

"Take It From The Top"

By John D. Frazier

Sophanes' recent student-directed production of "Take It From The Top," an informal type musical in which the characters "rehearse" before the audience, was well-received by Salisbury State Colleges audiences during the last two week-ends in April. The style, similar to that of "A Chorus Line," was very intuitive and extremely entertaining. Basically, the plot follows a group of actors through the tryouts, trials and tribulations of putting six "summer stock" shows together in eight weeks.

The show did, however, have one noticeable problem: the music. Although it sounded quite good in places, it was generally much too overpowering, sometimes so much that even the actors were unsure of themselves. In particular, the guitar amplifier, in combination with the percussion, often drowned out the soloists. But still, the actors themselves came through unscathed. Perhaps this problem can be prevented in future productions.

Joanne Linchuck and Chris Harris, directors of the show, were very enthused about their collaboration. As it turned out, they had a good reason to be happy, for they did a wonderful job, both onstage and as directors. A few of their most memorable moments were Chris' "I've gotta have some coffee!" and Joanne's "He was here last year!!."

We hope to see more Sophanes productions as enjoyable as this.

The cast of the show included: Les Shockley and JoEllen Harrison, as Dave Smith and Sally Fairchild, the "tender, sweet young things" who were naive to ways of the theatre. Then there was Lucy Sweetbottom, portrayed by Jackie Burdette, who knew how to use what she had to get what she wanted-and she did. The stage manager was played by Brian Applestein and the choreographer, "Legs" McCullen, was portrayed by Debbie Lombardo, of the SSC Dance Department.

The rest of the cast, who were the "auditionees," sang and danced their way through their various difficulties. Among the favorites performed were, "I Feel A Song Coming On," by the singers and dancers, and "Give My Regards To Broadway," which Robyn Winship started with a powerful lead.

Masque Dinner Theatre Presents

"OKLAHOMA!"

By Daryl Lambert

Once again there exists an opportunity for SSC students to attend theatre entertainment at an off-campus establishment.

Masque Dinner Theatre is now presenting the Rogers and Hammerstein's musical, "Oklahoma." The musical portrays two love affairs; one being between Curly, a young energetic cowboy, and Laurie, a sweet farm girl playing hard to get. The other romance takes place between Will Parker and Ado-Annie, both being portrayed as a lesser couple when it comes to romancing and character.

Will Parker is played by Tom Patt and Ado-Annie is played by Judy Cogswell. Both Tom and Judy portray their characters so well that the leads, Curly and Laurie, do not have a chance in winning the hearts of the audience. Curly is played by Mark Sullivan and Laurie is played by Gail Sullivan. Salisburyans have seen the team of "Sullivan and Sullivan" in past shows as "The Fantastiks" and "Guys and Dolls." It would seem that Will Parker and Ado-Annie should have been considered more carefully for parts other than what they got, but they do such an excellent job, that this show really is worth while.

The musical numbers sung during the show are well presented when one considers who is singing. Some musical numbers were cut out because of the lack of singing ability in the original cast. One song is really sung by two actors from behind the scenes. The songs aid tremendously to the show, as with any musical. Songs like, "Oh What A Beautiful Morning," "Oklahoma," "Surrey With The Fringe on Top," and "Can't Say No" all bring the show to a state of a tolerable, yet enjoyable performance.

Judy Taylor, long time choreographer for the Masque Dinner Theatre, has once again out-done herself with the choreography. All the dance numbers that she choreographed really add a degree of professionalism that is not often observed in this area. The only dance number that lacks this professionalism is the girl's dance number, "Many a New Day," which Judy Taylor did not choreograph.

Overall the cast of "Oklahoma" has worked extremely hard to make what some might call mis-casting or unprofessionalism, into a show that really can offer an enjoyable evening of "theatrical" entertainment.

Shows are every Friday and Saturday night except for May 15th and May 22nd. Reservations can be made by calling the Elks Lodge 546-3377. Dinner starts at 6:30 p.m. with the show starting at 8 p.m. Try to see this long acclaimed musical—"Oklahoma."

Teri Reaves, an alto in the SSC Chamber Choir, performed "Believe in Yourself," a moving song from "The Wiz" and Bob Forrester led a crew of scene-stealers in the comical, "A Techies Life." Looking forward to opening night, the Company sang "Tomorrow," and finished with the rousing, "Applause." The rest of the cast consisted of Andrew Davenport (who sang "Anyone Can Whistle"), Lisa Ianuzzi, Tammy Lewis, Sherrill Mentzei, Debbie Moxey, Marsha Pepper, Nancy Saadi, Debbie Vincent, and Becky Weber.

So, all in all, "Take It From The Top!" was a huge success, and all who attended had an excellent time. We can only hope to see more Sophanes productions as enjoyable as this.

Worms Infiltrate SSC Campus

A group of worms congregate between classes.

By Janice John

A worm slid down the blouse of Betty Buxom last Tuesday at Salisbury State College and escaped down her skirt, the Department of Public Safety reported. Miss Buxom was travelling from Chesapeake Dorm to Caruthers Hall when she was assaulted, said security. Her screams were apparently enough to scare the worm, who dropped to the ground and was immediately lost in a group loitering nearby. In a later line-up of suspects, Miss Buxom was unable to identify her assailant. "I think he was wearing a mask," she said tearfully.

After the incident, several enraged vigilantes charged upon the sidewalks, stomping and killing thousands of worms. Meanwhile, the worms countered the attacks with several attempted lynchings outside Tawes Hall. Emergency meetings have been set up by President Bellevance who expressed concern over the falling quality of applicants at SSC. "We've had an influx of worms applying for admittance in the fall," Bellevance reported, "however, despite their above-average SAT scores, we will only be considering those with a private school background." The administration is also concerned about what effect the physiological changes will have on the worms' academic success in the fall. "Puberty is an emotionally hard time," said Counseling Director Bob McBrien. "A change in our physical identities is often severely stressful." McBrien predicts a high moth drop out next year.

Worms are also applying in droves for the new resident hall director positions as well as maintenance and security personnel. Director of Housing Robert Lovely told us, "The worms are qualified. Our only concern is will the student residents respect their authority." Lovely foresees the possibility of the new hall directors being stepped on by students. Maintenance said they would reject the worms due to their nonprofessional appearance in uniform. Security said that as worms, none passed the height requirements, but as moths, a new addition of air traffic controllers is a possibility.

Other more conservative groups are unhappy about the infiltration of worms into a predominantly human campus. A new action group, the Women Against Worms has also been set up to take drastic measures against "those beasts." The WAW is organizing "Worm Awareness Week" scheduled for May 17-24 and have asked noted activist Goatia Stingem to speak on "Repulsing the Green Slime."

It is becoming obvious that this immense immigration of worms has upset the harmony at SSC. Ruthless violence has left thousands of worm remains strewn over the entire campus, making our freshly cemented scenery highly repulsive to look at and dangerous to walk on in bare feet. Burial or cremation of the corpses would be costly and time consuming, says the administration, but the staff is finalizing plans to remove the green, slimy bodies while saving the school money at the same time.

In coordination with Monte Bradley, director of food services, new, high protein dishes are being tested and will probably hit the cafeteria menus soon. These include Worm Drop Soup, Barbequed Spare Worm and Alaskan King Worm Legs. Next year, projected entrees include Mothloaf, Moth, Lettuce and Tomato Sandwiches (MLT's) and Moths Stuffed With Larvae Meat. "It's all a part of an upgrading process in the quality and taste of the food here," announced Bradley.

Meanwhile, as the population of live, wiggly worms grows exponentially, the well-being of the students is in danger. Many are calling for Maintenance to take an active defense posture and broom down the major worm headquarters so that innocent citizens of SSC may have relatively safe passage to class. But what will actually happen rests on the wings of moths.

Editors note: At least it is almost time for the caterpillars to reach their cocoon stage. Until then, watch where you walk at all times!!

A Look At Commuter Needs

By Jacqueline Banks

Commuting students comprise 70 percent of the total student population at Salisbury State College. It is time to look into their needs.

John Fields, assistant dean of students, supervises commuter affairs under the auspices of the Dean of Student's office.

A commuter, according to Fields for the purposes of SSC is "any student who is not living in college sponsored housing."

Part of Fields' responsibility is to improve services and offerings to the commuting population.

Commuters have been referred to as the PCP students cites Fields; that is the parking lot to classroom to parking lot students.

Commuting students have needs which are different from on-campus students and commuters' needs even vary among themselves depending on the distance they live from the campus.

Because the Dean of Student's offices "is not satisfied with the support rendered to the commuter population, it is trying to develop a basis for providing corrective services for these students," said Fields.

After Spring Break, a needs assessment was conducted on campus. Ten percent of the 70 percent of commuting students participated. The purpose of the survey was to determine what students concerns were.

Commuting students have needs which are different from on-campus students.

The most striking and unifying response was the feeling of alienation reported by the students. Commuting students, who are usually older than resident students, do not feel a part of campus life.

The needs assessment also showed that a significant percentage are not aware of the support services offered by the college such as Career Planning and Placement.

The "PCP" students also expressed a concern about inadequate parking facilities and a lack of information about activities. Most commuters don't participate in college organizations stated Fields.

The commuting population is asking for a commuter lounge, a day care facility, a microwave oven in the College Center and bus service to provide transportation within a certain radius of the campus.

Fields is taking measures to address some of these needs. Over the summer he plans to meet with the Space Committee to "see what can be done...space is a commodity

...if it is available, we will try to get a commuters' lounge arranged."

Some commuters travel 70 miles to get to school and remain here from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. A quiet place to relax and nap, besides a car, would be a well-deserved change.

Fields is also working on a brochure that will "delineate services that commuters are not aware of."

"Commuters", said Fields, "are a sometimes forgotten force on campus. Often plans and programs are organized with the resident student in mind."

Because commuting students comprise 70 percent of the total student population, student directed activities might be more successful if they kept that fact in mind.

The needs assessment was a beginning step toward identifying areas needing attention.

Lockerroom: A Final Visit

By Bob Thomas

The NFL draft came and went last week and it wouldn't surprise you if I said no Gull gridiron stars were drafted. Don't be deceived by the draft; just because you aren't drafted doesn't mean you can't play the game.

Chuck Hebron quickly found that out as the Seattle Seahawks signed him during the post-draft free agent scramble. The senior split-end will take his speed to the Kingdom in hopes of giving Jim Zorn a deep threat.

While Hebron is far from being in, he is a step ahead of another former grid star. Ken Olson is finding out just how hard it is to break into the NFL as a kicker, but his talent and perseverance are leading him across the country in search of the team. Impressive tryouts with the Cowboys, Chiefs and Dolphins are his springboard to a future job. His next stop is Houston as he tries to dethrone the aging Tony Fritsch.

Good luck guys in your efforts to be the first SSC players to make the big time.

***

While we're talking football, new head coach Mike McGlinchey has been gearing up for his long awaited debut. McGlinchey has been recruiting heavily and preparing last year's players for the season to come. With McGlinchey's talents and the respect his players have for him, the Gulls are certain to fly higher in '82.

Looking back at the past two semesters, athletics in general have not fared well. In the fall it was the demise of the football team and the inability of the women's tennis and field hockey teams to recapture the dominance in their respective sports which they had just a few short years ago. The men's soccer team fell short of defending their state title.

Winter sports saw the men's basketball team reach above the .500 mark, with much credit due to the play of John Berens. Meanwhile, the wrestling team had problems with injuries and lack of experience in some classes. The biggest disappointment had to be when John Dolch was forced to forfeit out of national championships with a shoulder injury, killing his chances of an unprecedented third national championship.

The women's basketball team suffered through another frustrating season which culminated, as usual, with a narrow loss at the hands of powerful Frostburg.

Spring came and the prognosis was not good as many teams were faced with rebuilding seasons. The most successful team has been the men's lacrosse team (10-3). Once again Charley Clark has molded a group of young and older players and pointed them in the direction of the national championship. Despite a disappointing loss at the hands of Washington College, the Gulls are still in the running for the title.

Baseball has been another story entirely. The season started out promising, but when several pitchers were injured the Gulls quickly found themselves with an arm shortage.

Even though the team has hit fairly well, Deane Deshon will not be taking his troops to a national berth when the season comes to an end.

The women's softball team once again proved that they belong in the elite class of college teams. Troy Doyle saw his team finish the regular season with a 10-6 record and win their opening regional round only to fall to Bloomsburg in the second round.

Pam Gonce provided the pitching throughout the season while Lori Ford, Cindy Zile and Carolyn Huston teamed with freshman Paige Wallace to anchor the offense and defense.

Success has not come easily for the Gulls in the '81-'82 academic year. A result of the de-emphasis of athletics?

***

While there have been fewer wins on the courts and fields, some athletes have emerged as standouts in various sports. While these underclassmen did not get a chance to compete on title teams, they earned valuable experience and should be ready to excel in the future.

Some names to remember and look for in the future: Tony Hartman, Joe Mammano and Gavin Colliton (football), Chris Rommett, Richard Fisher and Henry Farrell (soccer), Carol Haifley (tennis), Dave Dullis and Les Wright (cross-country), Scott Smith, Brett Carter and Garry Levere (basketball), Joe Schwab and Mel Williams (wrestling), Jay Wilson, Dave Buchworth, Brian Dunn, Dave Brubacher and Steve Butler (baseball), Paige Wallace (softball), Blair Willing (track and field), and the list goes on...

And so the semester comes to an end, many goals have been reached and many lay ahead. Salisbury State College has had one of the finest and most complete athletic programs in division III athletics. The success and failure depends on the attitudes and abilities of the athletes and coaches.

With tighter academic requirements, the programs can flourish or falter. The responsibility belongs in the hands of future athletes.

In my four years at SSC I have seen some great accomplishments and as I leave I will always remember the good times. To the athletes of tomorrow I wish you luck. Carry on the tradition of success and excellence!

Sports Medicine Seminar Saturday

Are you interested in sports medicine? Athletic training? Coaching? Even being a physical education instructor?

If you answered yes to any or all of these then you might want to consider attending the eighth annual Salisbury State College Sports Medicine Seminar, this Saturday, May 15. This seminar will feature nine highly informative trainers and physicians well acquainted with sports-related injuries.

The seminar for athletic trainers, physical therapists, coaches, physical education instructors, college students, high school and college student trainers and other allied health personnel is designed to introduce new ideas and knowledge in the prevention, care and rehabilitation of various athletic injuries.

Hunter Smith, head athletic trainer added, "It is open to anyone with a real interest in the field. If someone attends and is not familiar with the basic techniques for treating a sports-related injury, they will not get that much out of it unless they intend to study the field in the future."

Undergraduate and graduate students can earn one hour of summer session credit by attending the seminar, while the National Athletic Trainers Association has approved the seminar for Continuing Education Units (CEU's). The American Medical Association Physician's Recognition Category I Award is available for six hours.

Experienced and nationally recognized athletic trainers, physicians and sports medicine specialists, including Dr. David M. Roe, orthopedic consultant, Salisbury State College; Neil MacDonald, L.P.T., A.T.C., coordinator, Sports Medicine Center, Union Memorial Hospital, Baltimore, Md.; Keith Handling, R.P.T., A.T.C., athletic trainer, University of Delaware; Peter Sauer, graduate assistant athletic trainer, Salisbury State College; Hunter Smith, A.T.C., head athletic trainer, Salisbury State College; Lorry Michel, A.T.C., athletic trainer, Georgetown University; Dr. Louis H. Himes II, team physician, Salisbury State College; John Lopez, A.T.C., head athletic trainer, Baltimore Colts; and John Kasik, A.T.C., assistant athletic trainer, Baltimore Colts.

Each speaker will address the audience on his or her specialty in the prevention, care and rehabilitation of various sports-related injuries.

A $10 material cost fee is required of all registrants. If taken for college credit, additional fees will be charged by the Office of Continuing Education. Advanced registration is preferred.

For more information, contact Hunter Smith at Salisbury State College, (301) 546-3261, ext. 405.

at the College of William and Mary in Virginia.

Prior to coming to Salisbury, he attended graduate school at Tennessee Tech University. Immediately after graduate school, he served as an assistant trainer in the Miami Dolphins summer camp. He joined the faculty and staff of Salisbury State in the fall of 1972.

Smith will leave SSC shortly after the end of the school year and will assume the duties of head athletic trainer. At William and Mary he will not be a member of the teaching faculty, preferring to concentrate on his duties as head trainer.

He remarked, "Salisbury has treated me well. I wanted to leave the teaching profession and this will give me the opportunity to expand myself in the field of athletic training." "It is a good move for me," he added.

"William and Mary has a division I athletic program with scholarship athletes. However, they don't get hurt any differently than any other athletes," continued Smith.

Smith will be missed by the athletes as his dedication has been a trademark of the quality of treatment received by the students. Salisbury will miss him but William and Mary will be thankful to have gained his services.

Shagulls Make AIAW East Regionals

By Kenny Johnson

"We've come a long way and we plan on going farther." That is the motto for this year's softball team. Although their season is almost over, everyone on the team is still very energetic.

"We have a very competitive team this year and we've done very well. We had a lot of young people in very important positions," says co-captain Lori Ford. The team this year played a really strong schedule and ended with a 10-6 record for the year.

At regionals, the Gulls were seeded seventh out of a field of 16 teams. "We got in mainly on the strength of our schedule," remarked Ford. In the first round of games, SSC played against Misericordia College from Dallas, Pennsylvania and won the best of three games.

The scores were 3-1 and 3-2. The second round was against Bloomsburg, PA. "That was our best game all season," says Ford. "Both teams played excellent defense." SSC won the first game by a score of 1-0, but Bloomsburg came back to win the next two games 2-0 and 5-0, respectively.

The team has a good chance of making it into the National competition in Grand Rapids, Michigan. All they can do now is to watch and wait.

Seagull Football Preview

By Scott Weeks

When the later weeks of August finally get here and Salisbury State College's football team takes those first few grueling steps out to the practice field, in the midst of 90 degree temperatures and high humidity, there will be some new looks about them.

One of those will be recently appointed head coach of the football team and head coach of the nationally renowned wrestling squad. Not only will McGlinchey be coaching the football team to also teach five classes here on the SSC campus.

McGlinchey stated that "Due to the amount of time involved in coaching a sport such as football," he would not have time to also coach the wrestling team. However, he did make it clear that he will still help out with the wrestlers whenever possible.

Also being unleashed next year will be the addition of the Wing-T offense which McGlinchey has high hopes for and says, "It's an offense designed especially for Division III play. In the Wing-T offense, everyone becomes a football player that must execute." Heading next year's offense will be quarterback Tony Hartman a 6'3", 200 lbs. sophomore out of St. Johns High School in Washington, D.C.

Four New Ones Fall 1982 Coaching Staff Changes

By Robert Schlenger

With the end of another school year fast approaching, the coaches of Salisbury's athletic teams are preparing for next year. Some are recruiting new people while others are finalizing their schedules.

During this past school year there were three new coaches. In women's basketball, Mariuna Morrison returned from sabbatical to take over for Dennis Bradford who had been the interim head coach.

In field hockey Barb Abbott replaced Sharon T. Yeagle who left on maternity leave. Yeagle also stepped down as head coach of the women's lacrosse team. Debbie Bloodworth served as interim head coach.

Women Stickers Show Promise

By Kenny Johnson

May 3 marked the final game for the women's lacrosse team. Up against Trenton State, last year's champs, the SSC girls put up a good fight but still lost by a score of 21 to 2. Now 2-8, most of the team can only wait until next year.

Coach Debbie Bloodworth does not look upon this season with any regret. "We played a lot of strong Division III teams, like Glassboro, Old Dominion, and Trenton. The in-state teams, like Frostburg and UMBC, were more of a match for us."

"Even though we didn't have a 'winning' season, the team held together."

One of the team's major problems this year was perhaps a lack of experience. "Only four of our players have played lacrosse before coming to SSC," remarked Bloodworth, "all the other girls had to learn once they got here. Our goal keeper, even though she is a senior, just started playing this year, but

Two of the members of this year's team have been chosen to play on the Maryland College II team. After a seven game tournament at Essex Community College, Mary Sadler and Sherry Clem were chosen for the Maryland II team. They played in the South Tournament at Goucher College in Tow-

Tanya (Minion) did do a very nice job for us."

"Freshmen Gena Freley and Denise Bartoe are to be complimented on their hard work this season, along with Mary Sadler and the senior defense squad. They accomplished a lot," commented Bloodworth. Sherry Clem was this year's scoring threat. When asked about her feelings on this past season, Clem remarks, "Even though we didn't have a 'winning' season, the team held together. Those who didn't score high on the board, scored high when it came to boosting the teams morale."

son, MD this past Saturday and Sunday. Sadler, a senior, has been appointed for the third time to play on the team. Clem, this year's consistent scoring leader, was chosen after scoring 14 of SSC's 26 goals during the competition. Congratulations, Mary and Sherry and the entire women's lacrosse team for a fantastic effort.

Along with Hartman on offense, the returning key players will be runningback Mike Bruce (5'7", 174 lbs., junior), runningback Randy West (6'0", 216 lbs., sophomore), guard Tom Cusato (5'11", 212 lbs., senior) guard Mark Geniesse (6'1", 181 lbs., senior), and tackle Rodney Yates (6'1", 242 lbs., senior).

Along with all these returning players, there will also be a strong turnout of recruits from various high schools. When asked about the recruiting year, McGlinchey replied, "It was great. We got some very good athletes, but not only that, a lot of academically blessed students who scored over 1,000 on their S.A.T. tests."

McGlinchey used to be optimistic about the Gulls chances in the upcoming season, but only for a short time. After he had seen the profits from the winter program he knew he had taken over a team filled with pride, dedication, and most of all, that burning desire for August to get here so they can do what they like best...play football!

While the hopes of all Seagull fans will be on the new offensive look, the defense will be no slouch either. With returning players such as linebacker Mark Lagowski (6'2", 210 lbs., senior), noseguard Bill Cafiero (5'10", 185 lbs., senior), tackle Aaron Bell (5'8", 217 lbs., junior), strong safety Brian Defulgo (5'11", 196 lbs., senior), linebacker Mike Burke (6'3", 215 lbs., senior), linebacker Wade Manis (5'11", 190 lbs., junior), and defensive end Gavin Colliton (6'1", 210 lbs., senior) it promises to be as devastating as ever.

Williamson said the performance had to be cancelled also because it would have been impossible to find another time slot that all the choir members had free.

Williamson cited the fact that parents received the Student Recognition Weekend brochure late as a possible contributing factor for the slim turnout. She said the Honors Committee mailed the brochures in time to reach the parents during spring vacation, but that the brochures were delayed in the post office for five days. Williamson added that she is not even sure if it did affect attendance, but that it could have.

COACHES cont. from page 13

Next fall there will be at least four new coaches in the athletic department. Bill Yeagle, the head football coach at SSC for the past three years has resigned, and long-time Seagull assistant Mike McGlinchey has been named as the new head coach.

McGlinchey's appointment as head coach drew applause from returning players as they regard him as an "excellent motivator."

Shortly after his appointment to the football post, McGlinchey resigned as head wrestling coach. Pete Basile, SSC's assistant wrestling coach during this past season has been named as McGlinchey's successor.

At least two other coaching positions are going to be different next year. Troy Doyle, the women's softball coach for the past nine years, has stepped down to pursue other interests.

Also, Charles B. Clark, SSC's lacrosse mentor the past four years, has announced that he is stepping down from the position of head lacrosse coach at the end of the school year.

Two other sports that might have a new coach next year are field hockey and women's lacrosse. Both of their coaches were on an interim basis this year, and as of press time no determination had been made regarding their status for next year.

Hopefully the new coaches next year can be as successful as the one's they are replacing. The students of Salisbury State are used to winning teams as a whole and they are looking forward to the future success of SSC's athletic teams.

1. The SGA constitution is severely outdated although it is currently being revised, it is an outdated set of rules. However, as outdated as it appears to be, it was in effect at the time of the elections and was supposed to have been followed by the Executive Board.

2. The candidate went ahead, ran and won. Yes he went through the trouble of running and, hopefully, he won fairly. But, if the Executive Board had not been negligent in checking the qualifications of the candidates beforehand, he would have not been allowed to run at all. The fact that he won should not have made any difference whatsoever. A candidate who is ineligible to run is ineligible to win! In this case, the most logical thing to do was disqualify him as soon as his ineligibility was discovered, which was what the election commissioners did immediately. At first!

The process of appeal was used by the disqualified candidate. The other two candidates for the position were not officially informed of the protest by the Executive Board, nor were they given the opportunity to state their viewpoints to the Board.

The decision by the Executive Board to give an executive position to freshmen has turned the entire election into a farce. One has to wonder if this was set up only to enable next year's Executive Board to have their own little clique! After all, it's ironic that all the members of the Executive Board are located on the same floor of the same dorm (save for the females). Besides all this, it is grossly unfair to the other two candidates for the position, both of which were infinitely more qualified for the position of Rules Committee Chairman. A fact that the Executive Board appeared to overlook. Our question is "If a candidate is vying for a rules chairman position, shouldn't he first know the rules, or at least check?" The fact is, the other two candidates did indeed know of the stipulation in the constitution and had indeed read it and the entire constitution. One has to wonder if Rick Matthews did, or if he has even seen a copy of it?

The other two candidates do, of course, have an opportunity to make an appeal. But what's the use? The members of the Executive Board have made absolute fools of themselves with the bungling, and with the back and forth reversals of decisions. They're definitely not going to look any more foolish by reversing their decision again.

Having seen this example of the SGA at work, it comes as no surprise that the majority of students are extremely apathetic toward the SGA. This episode has made more than one involved student re-think their plans for next year. Tell me Mr. Moseman—is this what you want?

it is not. After all, Food Services orders the amount of what they want, but they could be guessing very high or low. They are on the lowest bid, so they have no say in the quality, only quantity.

Also, if you are wondering why they have had grilled cheese only twice this semester, it is because of the ordering rule requiring 3 months. Special problems with ovens, steamers, and ordering enough all make their chore more difficult to cater to than the unaware students realize.

Some planned changes that will be incorporated in the fall of '82 will be 1) It is hoped breakfast will be run from 7:30-9:30 a.m., 2) A caloric value of the food will be put on the menu, and 3) There will be yogurt.

Through the survey it was found out that some people did not know that Food Services helped those with class conflicts. If a student had a sports event or just couldn't make it to lunch or dinner because of classes, Mrs. Cottman could give them substitutes (like sandwiches), and if they did not like the substitutes, they could get a rebate.

If a dormitory or floor wanted to have a picnic, birthday party, or a different special event, they could just see Mrs. Cottman and she would be more than glad to help them plan, prepare, and lend out utensils. All that she needs are meal card numbers for those participating. For anyone with a need for a special diet, contact Mrs. Cottman. If a student has any questions during meal time, he should just ask the supervisor or the head worker on the service line.

The Flyer Production Office is closed for the rest of the semester and will re-open on September 8, 1982.

A SAFE WAY TO FIND OUT HOW MUCH LIQUOR YOU CAN HOLD.

Everybody knows you shouldn't drive when you've had too much to drink. Unfortunately almost nobody knows what too much to drink is.

According to Federal standards, you're legally under the influence of alcohol when you have .10% alcohol in your bloodstream. Which means absolutely nothing to most people.

What does mean something is your weight, your physical condition, the number of drinks you've had and how long it took you to have them.

The combination of these factors can give you a more understandable way of knowing your drinking limit.

That's why we, the makers and sellers of distilled spirits, offer this chart. Use it to help find out whether you're approaching, up to, or past your limit.

It's a lot safer than finding out on the road.
